The Democracy of Wisconsin.

ADOPTED IN STATE CONVENTION, AT

MILWAUKEE, SEPT. 3d, 1862.

We address you in a time of great trial and calamity. We address you in a time of national suffering and sorrowing. We address you in a crisis of fearful peril to the Union, and to the free institutions established by our fathers in the several States. We do so with a solemn sense of the responsibilities resting upon us in common with the whole American people. We do so with the single design of contributing all our aid to the preservation of the Union, the Constitution, and the liberties let whatever new power frown upon the ancient American birthright of freedom of the institutions of our country should give way to passive submission to our rulers, has won by the valor of our fathers, or of the free institutions established by their wisdom. In a free country, the freedom of the people of the United States, and the Constitutions of the several States, provide alike for all the exigencies of peace at home and abroau, of foreign war, and of domestic insurrection.

The Constitution of the United States, and the laws enacted in pursuance of it, are the supreme law of the land in all conditions of all circumstances of the people and the govdom of the people. State necessity, as an excuse for invading popular liberty, has been in all history the tyrant's plea. When popu-cessive, the land has already ceased to be free.

Loyalty, in America, is the franchise of no office or officer. American loyalty is due to the Constitution alone. Fidelity to the Con-

Union outside the Constitution. The Consti-cer or party, assumes to be true to the Union, tion is as subject to the Constitution, and as responsible for its observance, as the people.

The Administration may err, but the Constitution does not change. And when the Administration violates the Constitution, loyalty to the Administration may become disloyalty to the Union. Devotion to the Constitution

In times of peace and prosperity, there is little danger of the loyalty of the people fora party, or the policy of an Administration.

there is danger of patriotism being blindfolded, mistaking the object of its faith, and trans-days it is the duties of all parties to consider well their position, and to determine how far

The Federal party, the National Republican party, the Whig party, have suc-cessively struggled with it, with varied suc-7:20 A. M..... 5:10 A. M. cess; but have successively disappeared from history. This was not accidental. The Democratic party was as subject to accident as its rivals. It has been frequently defeated. But it has survived all its defeats, while its ancient enemies have not survived occasional success. The reason is apparent. It was founded on 10:30 P. M. . . . . . . . . . . . . . . . 6:00 P. the death of error; it lives the life of truth. The history of the country is the history of the Democratic party. With occasional in-termissions, it has administered the National Government and guided the mark of American history. Under its influence, the true spirit of the Constitution displaced the narrow and un-American comprehension of our system of Government which originally pre-vailed, and gave tone to the Administration of the elder Adams. Under its influence the commercial and economical interests of the country were emancipated from the hot house system of tariffs and currency, which bound American energy and skill in the chains of European theory. Under its leadership, the American flag was carried in glory through war, and sent in peace floating in security over all the seas of commerce. Under its leadership the area of the country was almost doubled, and new fields of enterprise were populated by prosperous American communities. Under the guidance of no other party was any great stride made in civil or commercial prosperity, was a war ever waged with a foreign enemy, was an acre of territory ever added to our vast domain. The Democratic party led the country from its feeble and poor condition at the beginning of the present century, to the great and glorious empire of freedom, the unparalleled political and material prosperity, in which it met with its last defeat in the Presidential election of Such defeats of the great party of the country never before carried with them permanent evil to the nation. The old opponents of the Democracy took the Administration of the Government upon its defeat, and surrendered it again upon its success, the Constitution and the Union remaining unimpaired. The ancient antagonists of the Democracy, whatever their sins of doctrine or action, were national parties, resting upon no sectional policy, representing no sectional constituency. When in power, they administered the Government upon the policy of a majority of the whole country. When in opposition they spoke for a minority of the whole country. They were loval because they were national. The Union was safe, because they were loval. Their success was harmless to the Constitution, because it was the defeat of a constitutional party, and not of the spirit of the Con- I HAVE associated with me in business Mr. G.
